How To Make Your Computer Easier To Use Than Your Telephone!

If you are interested in being able to make your personal computer... as easy-to-use as your home telephone... this... will be the most important message you will ever read.

Here is why.

A small new report has just been published. It was written for beginners, senior citizens and everyone else who is frustrated by computers.

It is very short, very simple, very easy-to-read and, very cheap to buy.

This report is amazing. It teaches anyone who can read plain English how to use a computer like an expert... even if... you have never used a computer before! It starts with the idea you know absolutely nothing about a computer... not even... how to turn one on!

Then, it takes you step-by-step, starting with how to plug your computer into your electric wall socket (believe it or not, most people make a mistake when they do this)...

- ◆ In just a few minutes, you will be able to recognize every part of your computer... and... how each part works!
- ◆ You will learn how to navigate every version of Windows, just like a pro! It does NOT matter if you have Windows 95, how to turn your computer on (the correct way)... and... exactly... how to go from there.

And guess what? After you start reading this little report... in less than 20-minutes... you will know more about how to use a computer than almost anybody... even if... they have been using a computer for years.

How can this be? The answer is easy. Every computer sold in America comes with an "Instruction Manual." These manuals are confusing, almost impossible to understand... and... are full of useless information!

O.K., the first thing everyone does when they buy a computer is read the

to get on the Internet (the easy way)... you will also learn a "secret" way... to bypass... busy signals... so, you will always be able to get on the 'Net almost instantly!
